Stoxen Library Code of Behavior

Be courteous to other library patrons by muting your cell phone and lowering the volume on your audio devices and conversations when in the library.

Computers are primarily for Dickinson State University students, faculty and staff. The primary purpose of the computers in the Library is for research. Limit your time when others are waiting to use computers. The library staff reserves the right to request users to relinquish a computer when needed by another patron for conducting research.

Guest patrons can acquire guest computer use cards which allow limited, complimentary access to library computers. These cards are available at the main service desk and are valid for one use upon presentation of appropriate identification. These cards must be posted in the plastic pocket attached to the computer. Guest patron usage is limited to 30 minutes.

To ensure a clean environment for studying and working, please discard all trash in the receptacles located throughout the building prior to departing. Please leave white paper in the recycling containers and do not place other assorted trash in the recycling containers.

Theft and mutilation: all Library materials must be checked out at a Library service desk. A $100 fine or the replacement cost will be levied to anyone mutilating any library materials or removing items without the appropriate checkout.

Food in the Library is restricted to snacks. Please do not bring in food from outside vendors. No food or beverages next to the computers or circulating laptops.
